Nine year-old Allison went on the back to school shopping trip. Like so many girls, Allison has always had a difficult time seeing how beautiful she is. She compares her outward appearance to others and feels she just doesn't add up. Now understand, this young lady is beautiful from the inside out, but up to this point we had been unsuccessful in getting her to see it. Our back to school shopping trip changed it all! I helped the girls pick out outfits and followed them to the dressing room. The other girls with us were ready to put on a runway show (it was highly entertaining), but Allison would quickly change in and out of each outfit not wanting to show anyone.

The other staff and I would tell her how stunning she looked in each outfit. Slowly but surely we could see the praise sinking in. With each new outfit, she carried herself with a little more confidence and was a little more willing to show off her new outfit. By the time we were finishing, Allison joined the girls on the runway. It was incredible to see her so sure of herself. After looking at herself in the three-way mirror, she looked at me and said, "Ms. Kyla, I feel so pretty!"

On the first day of school, Allison stepped onto the bus with that same self confidence she had at the end of the shopping trip. It's unbelievable that something so small, like a new outfit can have such a great impact!

Some of our children have literally come to us with only the clothes on their back. We provide our children with clothing when needed, but as you can imagine, that can get very costly with 32 children on campus.

As you can see from the story above, a clothing sponsor will improve our children's lives by providing clothing throughout the year for school, and the changing seasons. This makes such an impact in our children's confidence.

You can choose to sponsor one child, a sibling group, a cottage, or campus. You can choose to pick out the clothing yourself or send a sponsorship check for a child's clothing. It's all up to you.
